We work for excellence

Established in 1953, the Canadian Manufactured Housing Institute represents all facets of the factory-built housing industry. CMHI brings manufactured housing builders, retailers, suppliers, landlease community operators, warranty providers, financial institutions, standards bodies, government agencies and related professions together to achieve business excellence.

We're dedicated to industry professionalism, consumer education and improved housing choice and affordability. We're committed to the principles of trust, value and service in our business dealings with consumers and others in the industry.

We take pride in what we do, and how we do it.

We work for growth

CMHI works to promote a healthy business environment. This involves a wide range of activities:

- industry networking and communication
- consumer information initiatives
- industry education and training
- codes and standards development
- research and innovation projects
- public-private partnerships
- regulatory reform
- representations to government
- export marketing and research

We work to ensure that the interests of the manufactured housing industry are addressed at a national level. Through our affiliation with regional manufactured housing associations, we provide support on issues of a provincial, territorial or municipal nature.

We make a difference

Together, CMHI members have changed the face of the factory-built housing industry in Canada. We have been a driving force behind major private- and public-sector programs that have far-reaching positive effects on our business, such as:

- The Manufactured Housing Consultant (MHC)TM Program that equips the front-line people in the industry with enhanced skills and knowledge and a designation that is recognized as the mark of the professionals
- The Chattel Loan Insurance Program that can provide access to financing for many consumers who might otherwise be unable to purchase a home
- CSA Standards Certification that provides quality assurance and peace of mind for consumers and building officials
- The GST/HST New Housing Rebate for manufactured housing that helps make homeownership more affordable
